Leave Debris Behind Curb, Insists City

Debris piled out for city pick-up should not be placed in gutters, but should be left up behind the curb, Public Works Director Ralph Speer reminded Iowa City residents today.

Speer said some who have cleaned yards of debris from the Wednesday hailstorm have placed the material in gutters along streets, creating a potential problem should it block a gutter during a storm, or be washed into storm sewers.

Speer said he has not scheduled a special pick-up, but that crews were continuing regular rounds.

The director also pointed out that all loose material and grass clippings must be placed in containers if city crews are to pick them up. He also noted that any brush should be cut into short lengths for easy handling and packing in trucks.

Many Ask About Safety Of Friends

The local chapter of the American Red Cross has received inquiries from area residents about the safety of 176 persons in the tornado disaster areas at Charles City and Oelwein.

Response on about half of those persons has been received from the stricken areas. Of those responses, only six persons were listed among the injured.

The chapter has received word from its national headquarters that residents of the two cities have sufficient food and clothing at this time, Mrs. Lorna Mathes, executive director of the Johnson County Chapter, said.

However, anyone wanting to assist with rehabilitation of families may do so by contributing to the Red Cross Disaster Fund for Oelwein and Charles City. Contributions can be made through the local chapter at 530 East Washington Street.

PHU BAI, Vietnam (AP)—U.S. Command, included 159 Americans killed, 662 wounded seriously enough to require hospitalization, 21 helicopters destroyed and 108 damaged.

There was no report from South Vietnamese forces in the operation, named Delaware.

U.S. commanders said the allied force—estimated earlier at more than 15,000 men—closed out the operation in the valley 370 miles northeast of Saigon because the approaching monsoon rains were about to cut off their air support.

Although there was no official word because of security requirements, it was assumed the cost, according to the

'Library' Liquor Suit Sent Back to Commission

A dispute over whether a liquor license should be issued to the Library Ballroom, Con Falls, was returned to the Iowa Liquor Control Commission today.

In a ruling handed down today, District Court Judge William R. Eads remanded the case to the commission for what the judge called "a meaningful hearing."

Raymond Scheetz and Alvon Huntzinger, library operators, filed the suit in protest of actions by the Johnson County Board of Supervisors and the Iowa Liquor Control Commission.

Last October the board recommended denial of the Huntzinger and Scheetz request for a liquor license and on appeal by the two men, the commission upheld the decision. The matter was then taken into District Court.

The library has been primarily a gathering place for teenagers and currently is open only one night a week. In court testimony, supervisors noted that they did not think it advisable for a teen-type establishment to hold a liquor license.

It already has a beer permit. Daniel Boyle, attorney for the two men, maintained such a reason was not among criteria allowed under the Iowa law on liquor licenses.

Judge Eads said the appeal hearing by the commission was "informal" and "could be characterized as a hearing only under a broad definition of the term."

He noted that the commissioners were told that the supervisors had decided "liquor and teen-agers do not mix," but despite that fact they said they wanted to hear the supervisors' reasons for their decision. The supervisors did not appear at the hearing and the commission had no direct contact with them.

The commission indicated, said the judge, that it did not like to overturn decisions by local boards of supervisors and in fact had never done so.

He termed the commission's action in upholding the supervisors a "perfunctory affirmation."

"To permit that tactic," he continued, "would be to allow the commission to 'pass the buck' to the District Court."

In this instance, he added, it would permit the commission to avoid the investigative and other procedures that Huntzinger and Scheetz were told would be followed.

The supervisors today said that if called by the commission to appear they will do so and, in fact, would be required to do so under those circumstances.

Behind a tavern there, they arrested Garringer and two girls, whom they would not identify. The girls were turned over to juvenile authorities.

North Vietnam: "To reach a peaceful settlement of the Vietnam problem, the U.S. government must first of all stop definitely and unconditionally the bombing raids and all other acts of war on the whole territory of the Democratic Republic of North Vietnam." (Thuy, May 15).

—Basis for a settlement United States: As to the future of South Vietnam, we reiterate the fundamental principle that the South Vietnamese people must be allowed to determine their own future without outside interference... (Harriman, May 13).

In Vietnam we seek no sphere of influence—no military presence, no bases, no alliances. (Harriman, May 13).

I am struck by some similarities in our respective positions. First—we both speak of an independent, democratic, peaceful and prosperous South Vietnam. Second—we both speak of peace on the basis of respect of the Geneva accords of 1954.

Third—we both speak of letting the internal affairs of South Vietnam be settled by the South Vietnamese themselves. Fourth—we both speak of the reunification of Vietnam by peaceful means. (Harriman, May 15).

North Vietnam: "The government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam expounded its viewpoint in April 1965: 1. Recognition of the basic national rights of the Vietnamese people: peace, independence, sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity.

2. Pending the peaceful reunification of Vietnam, the military provisions of the 1954 Geneva agreements on Vietnam must be strictly respected. 3. The internal affairs of South Vietnam must be settled by the South Vietnamese people themselves, in accordance with the program of the South Vietnam National Front for Liberation without any foreign interference.

4. The peaceful reunification of Vietnam is to be settled by the Vietnamese people in both zones, without any foreign interference." (Thuy May 15).

Inmates Agree With Sheriff: Start Crime Prevention Early

Too little money is spent on juveniles before they get into trouble. Not on you fellows," he said.

He was speaking to five Anamosa and Ft. Madison inmates temporarily at University Hospital for treatment. They had gathered for a discussion with him, which was arranged by a section of a speech class at the University of Iowa.

Schneider said crime prevention policies aimed at youth are extremely important and at least one of the inmates agreed, saying, "If I'd had some help then I wouldn't be here."

Whetstine Quits Post On HACAP

Officers were elected to three positions Thursday night at a meeting of the Johnson County Advisory Committee for the Hawkeye Area Community Action Program (HACAP).

The elections resulted from the resignation of William Whetstine from the vice presidency of the committee, from the presidency of the HACAP Council and from his position as representative to the HACAP Board of Directors in Cedar Rapids.

Reasons for his resignation were varied and "personal," according to the HACAP officials.

Elected to the committee's vice presidency is Ida Walker, to the council presidency, Edyle Pilkington, and as representative to the board of directors, Barbara George.

Among other matters, the 36-member committee discussed methods whereby the membership could be divided into thirds among public officials, low-income representatives and interested citizens. Such division would meet specifications of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Members currently are divided between low-income representatives and interested citizens. Since Monday, HACAP has been designated the official anti-poverty agency in Johnson County. The designation was made by the Johnson County Board of Supervisors at a public hearing. The hearing stemmed from a proposal based on the Green Amendment to the anti-poverty bill. It requires that an anti-poverty unit be either a part of government or a public or private non-profit organization designated by a governing body.

Classes in the future, Heaton said, will entail discussion of parole rights and of legal rights for average citizens. The inmates seem to be "anxious to get as much education as they can," he said.

Gov. Harold Hughes had been the only announced candidate for the Democratic nomination.
